WORLD SOCIETY FOR PEDIATRIC INFECTIOUS DISEASES

WSPID

The World Society for Pediatric Infectious Diseases (WSPID) is an alliance between the pediatric infectious diseases societies of all the continents including the European Society for Paediatric Infectious Diseases (ESPID), the Pediatric Infectious Diseases Society (North America, PIDS), the Asian Society for Pediatric Infectious Diseases (ASPID), the Sociedad Latinoamericana de Infectiología Pediátrica (SLIPE), the Australasian Pediatric Infectious Diseases Society and the Nigeria Society for Paediatric Infectious Diseases in Africa. Thus, virtually all specialists in this area are linked by the organization.

The WSPID has for its principal mission the bringing together of members of all the component societies every three years for scientific exchanges and for creation of new international collaborations and friendship. It has met previously in Mexico, the Philippines and Chile, each congress attended by 2000 or more delegates.

The WSPID is developing a worldwide network and gives high priority to support and stimulation of PID in developing countries through collaborative studies and teaching. Further the WSPID aspires to foster cooperation with other national and international organizations, including governmental and professional committees, as well as the pharmaceutical industry. Industry contributed substantially to the success of our first three congresses.

In September 2005, the Fourth International Congress of WSPID will be held in Warsaw, Poland, and undoubtedly will be attended by many physicians from East Europe as well as members from all over the world.

This brochure gives an overview of the possibilities for cooperation between WSPID and industrial companies, in fact how your company can represent itself at our world meeting by sponsoring parts of the congress and by co-organizing parts of the scientific sessions. This offers again a unique opportunity to contact key physicians throughout the world who create the standards of practice of pediatric infectious diseases.

We look forward to a fruitful collaboration.

Professor Stanley A Plotkin, president
